UNUSUAL CASE HEARD IN COURT

Liquor Dealer Sues Church for Money Alleged Due on Altar Wine

FINDS GRAPE JUICE IS USED

Joseph J. Meyer of Pittsburg, a wholesale liquor dealer and St. John the Baptist Russian Orthodox church of Charleroi were parties, plaintiff and defendant, respectively involved in a common pleas suit disposed of before Judge McIlvaine Monday. It was a rather out of the ordinary combination. Mr. Meyer sought to recover $167.19 of the church for wine sold and delivered to it said liquor alleged to have been used as altar wine. It was purchased through Rev. J. Seshinsky, former pastor of the Charleroi church but now pastor of the Russian church at Monongahela.

The church denied that it purchased any wine whatever from the plaintiff and produced testimony to show that said liquor was purchased by Rev. J. Seshinsky for himself and not for the church. The church further claimed that it uses grape juice at its altar and not such wine as was alleged to have been sold by Meyer to the church.

The plaintiff failed to show that the goods had been shipped or received by the church and upon motion of the counsel for the defense a compulsory non suit was granted. It seems the priest, at the time these goods were sold, was a good customer of the Meyer firm, buying from it a number of high-class liquors. He said himself it was for his own personal use. The defendant church is the state church of Russia, of which the czar is the head, and it was stated that no alcoholic liquors were allowed to be served at communion.

In the finest violins the body is made of white maple. In cheap ones violet ebony is used. In medium priced ones alternate layers of the two are employed. The best wood of all is that of the epicra, a tree resembling a fir in general appearance, which grows in central and northern Europe, but musical instrument makers set special value on that from the Vosges mountains. Its wood is most homogeneous and has the advantage over all others that there is scarcely any difference between the sap-wood and the heart.

Violet ebony, which comes from Brazil, Africa and India, is much used for violinos. True ebony is now so expensive that it is reserved for nuts and twistees.

The wood of trees from high altitudes and a severe climate is much better than that from plains and warmer countries for all purposes to which sonority is desired. And it should have had not less than 200 or 300 years of growth, and its concentric circles should be no more than two or three millimeters apart.

The ancient violin makers, Stradivarius, Amati, Guarnerius and the others, used the finest and best seasoned maple, and this, with their perfect varnish, is why their violins have lasted so long.—New York World.

The Seven-Wise Men of Greece.
The seven wise men of Greece were Thales of Miletus, Periander of Corinth, Cleobolus of Lindus, Chilon of Lacedaemon, Solon of Athens, Bias of Prienne and Pittacus of Mitylene. One fisherman of Miletus sold a draft of fishes to a bystander. When the net was drawn in it contained a golden tripod, and the purchaser claimed it was his, while the fishermen contended that they sold only the fish that might be in the net. The dispute was referred to the oracle of Delphi, who awarded the tripod to the wisest man of Greece. Thereupon it was taken to Thales, who declined it and suggested that it be given to Bias. He in turn refused to accept it, and thus it was successively declined by all the seven, and they were thereafter known as the seven wise men of Greece.

Beltane. In the highlands of Scotland and in Ireland May 1 was called Beltane. This was the name of an ancient pagan festival, traces of which have survived to this day. The name is still used for May day in Gaelic Scotland. It is said that the druids on that day used to make two fires with great illuminations and drive their cattle between them as a safeguard against disease.

What you do for an ungrateful man thrown away.—Latin Proverb

Through Saxony, Hesse and Hanover, the troops gobbled up and put to the sword French detachments. Recruits flocked to them. At Bernbeck the duke gave battle to the French General Junot and whipped him. All Germany thrilled at the romantic accounts of the daring of the terrible "Black Hussars."

A Saxon army was whipped at Zittau and another force at Halberstadt. A regiment had grown into an army. The only one Napoleon's troops could not corner and whip. The duchy of Brunswick was invaded and the French garrison alarmed. Leipzig was surprised and captured.

Until the battle of Wagram the dukes and his hussars rode over Germany at will. That victory gave Napoleon more time to devote to them, and the Duke was forced to flee to England. But the "Black Hussars," with the death's head on their caps, continued the warfare in scattered bands. They were reformed into a brigade in 1814 and, as a part of a division in the allied army commanded by the Duke of Brunswick, rode into Paris after Napoleon's downfall.

They fought again during the hundred days. The Duke of Brunswick did not live to see Napoleon's complete humiliation. He died on the field of battle while trying to rally some recruits who started a stampede at the first French fire.

The fame of the bussars had reached such a point that the organization was continued in the Prussian army. Today its colonel is the crown prince of Germany, and among its officers are princes of a dozen reigning German families.

The regiment presents a splendid appearance on parade, its picturesque uniform, of which the skull and crossbones on the headdress are the most striking attractions, imparting to the marching cavalymen a sinister and startling effect.—Kansas City Times.

The Walrus' Defenses.
A full grown walrus will weigh as much as 2,000 pounds, a mountainous mass of muscle and blubber. He is armed with tusks of ivory sometimes 6 feet in length, and when from his crested bulk these formidable weapons are plunged downward upon an enemy there are as resistless as the tip of a guillotine. Such a thick layer of blubber dies under the skin and he is practically clad in an armor impervious to teeth and claws alike.

Flight of a Bullet.
The same projectile propelled by the same power will travel farther, if projected vertically than if projected on a horizontal line four feet from the ground. Thus a bullet fired vertically at a velocity of, say, 100 feet per second, will ascend to a height of 155.3 ft., while if fired with same speed horizontally four feet from the ground it will strike the earth at a distance of 155 feet.—New York American.

UNUSUAL CASE HEARD IN COURT

FINDS GRAPE JUICE IS USED

Joseph J. Meyer of Pittsburg, a wholesale liquor dealer and St. John the Baptist Russian Orthodox church of Charleroi were parties, plaintiff, and defendant respectively involved in a common pleas suit disposed of before Judge McIlvaine Monday. It was a rather out of the ordinary combination. Mr. Meyer sought to recover $167.19 of the church for wine sold and delivered to it said liquor alleged to have been used as altar wine. It was purchased through Rev. J. Seshinsky, former pastor of the Charleroi church but now pastor of the Russian church at Monongahela.

The church denied that it purchased any wine whatever from the plaintiff and produced testimony to show that said liquor was purchased by Rev. J. Seshinsky for himself and not for the church. The church further claimed that it uses grape juice at its altar and not such wine as was alleged to have been sold by Meyer to the church.

The plaintiff failed to show that the goods had been shipped or received by the church and upon motion of the counsel for the defense a compulsory non suit was granted. It seems the priest, at the time these goods were sold, was a good customer of the Meyer firm, buying from it a number of high-class liquors. He said himself it was for his own personal use. The defendant church is the state church of Russia, of which the czar is the head, and it was stated that no alcoholic liquors were allowed to be served at communion.

TO PREACH ON SHORT WEIGHT

This morning was featured by a number of prayer meetings at various points, a business men's meeting at the office of Henry Sheets and then at noon a shop meeting was held at the Macbeth-Evans Glass plant.

POWERS OF THE GOVERNOR.

Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh has both conscience and courage and upholding his hands is not only the duty of the Republicans of Pennsylvania but it is the pleasure of most of them, especially when the governor is right.

The people of this state have commissioned Dr. Brumbaugh as their governor. The fundamental law of the state limits and fixes inflexibly his duties and powers. As governor he does not have the right to compel legislation. He enjoys the power to suggest and recommend enactments by the legislative branch, the duties and responsibilities of which are also fixed by law. The right of the governor to legislate is forbidden just as his right to revise, reverse or even modify judicial decisions are withheld from him. Keeping the three branches of the state government separate and apart is a wise provision of the constitution.

Gov. Brumbaugh may in the exercise of his powers withhold his approval from any legislation coming from the legislative branch of the state government. He is given power to compel enforcement of laws after their enactment, but the lines between the three branches of the state government are distinctly drawn, and they are not to be overridden at will.

Back in the administration of Gov. Robert E. Pattison, it will be recalled the executive insisted upon infringing upon the exclusive privileges of the legislative branch. An extraordinary session of the legislature resulted. It cost the state something like $800,000 and was without result. The fight at that time was not factional. It was provoked by an honest difference of opinion. The members of the legislature then refused to be compelled.

Every good Republican in Pennsylvania will wish more power to Gov. Brumbaugh's strong right arm. They hope he will succeed in whatever ambitions he may have, but the right to override fixed laws is not given to the governor by the people who have commissioned him.

As a member of either house of the state legislature Gov. Brumbaugh would in every sense be as jealous of his rights as he is convinced of his rights as governor. He might, therefore, with some advantage to his state put himself in the place of the legislators.

ONE NAME IS ENOUGH.

An eastern reformer has started a crusade against middle names. "Can you imagine a Julius B. Caesar?" he asks, "or a George F. Washington or a Napoleon McY Bonaparte?" remarks the Brownsville Telegraph.

The first reference is unfortunate, inasmuch as the gentleman's full appellation was Caius Julius Caesar. He was ashamed of it, however and set a good example to Thomas Woodrow Wilson and Stephen Grover Cleveland by dropping his front name when he entered public life.

When you come right down to it, two names ought to be enough for anybody. A third name is generally as useless as a third wheel on a bicycle, even if it does look well in a birth notice or a wedding invitation. Of course, the more names a man has tagged onto him, the less likely he is to be misled or to have his mail opened by strangers, but even those advantages hardly justify a French mother in giving her helpless offspring Jean Paul Baptiste Francois George Jacques Andre for its Christian name. An Idaho man boasting of three initials is irreverently dubbed "Alphabet," and it's no more than he deserves.

There have been lots of men who amounted to something with only one name. There was Moses, for example. Would he have had any more dignity or influence if he'd signed his name J. Ezekiel Moses? And there were Solomon and Rameses and Alexander and Homer and Solon and no end of notables in the same category.

Kings and emperors as a class have fewer names than anybody else. No matter what silly queen-mothers may happen to have them christened when they become their own bosses they choose whatever names they like, and none of them chooses more than one. It's just plain George or William or Nicholas—not even an initial. And as for hyphens, who ever heard of a hyphenated king? You've got to get to the top it seems in order to find real democracy and simplicity in names.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

Supper was in progress, and the father was telling about a row which took place in front of his store that morning, relates an exchange. "The first thing I saw was one man deal the other a sounding blow, and then a crowd gathered. The man who was struck ran and grabbed a large shovel he had been using on the street, and rushed back, his eyes blazing fiercely. I thought he'd surely knock the other man's brains out and I stepped right in between them."

The young son of the family had become so hugely interested in the narrative as it proceeded that he had stopped eating his pudding. So proud was he of his father's valor, his eyes fairly shone and he cried: "He couldn't knock any brains out of you, could he father?"

Father looked at him long and earnestly but the lad's countenance was frank and open.

Father gasped slightly and resumed his supper.

A colored man who had ambition to own a watch, but could not read time from ope, purchased a dollar watch recently, attached it to a strap and hung it from his coat lapel, putting the watch in the top pocket of his coat.

Sautering along, he met another colored man who likewise aspired to own a watch, but could not tell time either. The following conversation ensued:

"What you-all got there, Bill?" asked the colored man who met the owner of the watch.

"Got a watch," said Bill.

"Can you tell me the time?" asked the friend.

"Of course ah can!" said Bill.

"What time is it, then?" asked the friend.

"Find out you-self," said Bill.

He pulled out his watch and showed it face up to his friend, who looked at it, stared a moment and then replied:

"So it is, so it is," and walked away.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Dr. William Osler, one of the foremost of living medical men, formerly of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and now Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1922), on page 249: "The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. In the granulations, products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

Many eminent medical authorities have testified to the efficacy of lime salts in the treatment of tuberculosis, and the success of Eckman's Alternative in this and other chest and bronchial affections may be due partly to the fact that it contains a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Widespread use of this remedy in numerous cases of tuberculosis, many of which appear to have yielded completely to it—justifies our belief that it is worth a trial, unless some other treatment already is successful. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs. We make no promises concerning it any more than reputable physicians give promises with their prescriptions, but we know of many cases in which IT HAS HELPED.

Your druggist has it or can get it, or you can send direct.

FOREIGNERS UNABLE TO ROW HAVE CLOSE CALL

Thrilling Rescues Sunday at Black Diamond Make Possible Different Sort of Tale to Usual Kind When Boat is Rocked.

There might have been an exciting story to tell today, had not Benjamin Devore, ferryman at Black Diamond and the pilot of the B. F. Jones, had plenty of presence of mind Sunday afternoon. A skiff loaded to the gunwales with ignorant humanity might have been at the bottom of the river instead of them being a live and able to thank their rescuers.

Sunday afternoon, three men, three women and four little children, all foreigners put out from the short at Black Diamond in a rowboat. None of the party were able to row, but the yawl just drifted out to mid-stream without any propelling. Sometime later they discovered that they were directly in the line of the coming steamer, the B. F. Jones. None could row and all became greatly excited and jumped up gesticulating wildly and calling for help. Benjamin Devore who operates a ferry near the scene saw the predicament and immediately started out in his motor launch to rescue the party and about the same time the pilot on the Jones saw them. With presence of mind he reversed his engine and brought the heavy boat and its row to a stop and kept away from the scene while Devore tried to effect a rescue. As the motor boat was nearing the scene one of the men couldn't wait but made a flying leap at the coming boat. He missed it by about ten feet and as he couldn't swim, the first duty of the ferryman was to effect a rescue of him. By this time the Jones had been pulled to port and drifted lazily down upon the scene and a crew from it rescued the others from the skiff as they were rocking it frantically and it threatened to overturn at any moment. They were all taken aboard the steamboat and later were taken off to shore in the launch.

MARIANNA MINES TO RESUME ON APRIL 1, ACCORDING TO STORY

Semi-Official Announcement Made of Operations to Begin Soon—Receivers Say They Are Hopeful.

Semi-official announcement has been made that operations of the mines at Marianna would be resumed April 1, but the receivers for the Pittsburg-Buffalo company in Pittsburg eased the report a little by stating that they "hoped" the mines would be opened at that time. The word from the Pittsburg offices is that when the mines are started they will be started for an indefinite run. At Marianna there has been much work done by the relief committee to relieve want during the last few months.

Worry Kills More Men Than Fever

Horace Fletcher says "Worry is a sneak thief." It constantly steals the man's strength of mind and body. Eliminate the worry habit by starting a savings account with this bank, add a small percentage of your salary each pay day—it will care for those financial difficulties that come to the family from sickness and other misfortune.

MORGANZA COMMITTEE POSTPONE ITS TRIP

Judge McIlvaine and Others of Board Will Not Visit Governor Brumbaugh At Harrisburg This Week Regarding Appropriation.

Judge J. A. McIlvaine of this county had expected to go to Harrisburg this week as a member of a committee from the board of managers of the Training School at Morgantown. A telegram received states that Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh will be away from Harrisburg over Tuesday at Newport News to witness the launching of the battleship Pennsylvania. The committee desiring also to confer with the governor, the meeting has been postponed one week.

The committee is going to Harrisburg in the interests of the state appropriation to the training school. It is desired to have the appropriation sufficient to erect another cottage this year, carrying out a little farther the establishment of the cottage system at the school.

Judge McIlvaine had arranged for Judge James Ingham of Greene county, to come to Washington this week to sit in common pleas court. This arrangement will still be carried out. The visiting judge will hear cases carried over from last week. Consequently three common pleas courts were running Monday.
